Buffaloes Downed in Second Game of Tournament

W. T. Boys Win Great Admiration in First Go Against K. C.

After having won one of the most thrilling games of the National basketball tournament at Kansas City Monday night, the Buffaloes took the short end of the count last night and will start home today, but not without having made a most profound impression upon the best teams of America, and a vast basketball crowd which jammed the big auditorium in Kansas City.

Monday night's victory of 32-25 over the Kansas City Athletic Club came as a distinct surprise to the fans. Touted as a likely winner of the tournament, the Kansas City aggregation were thought by the 7,000 fans to have easy picking against what was considered a tall but slow bunch of country boys from the Plains of Texas. A few minutes of play made the fans reralize that the Texans were fast and a real bunch of ball players. All in vain the Kansas City bunch uncorked every trick in their bag, but the Buffs continued in command of the game, and before the end were the favorites among the big fan aggregation.

Captain Bob Clark was listed as one of the oustanding guards in the tournament, and received favorable mention as a likely candidate for the all-American guard. The Buff team as a whole was clicking with deathly precision in the first game of the tournament.

The Buffs drew the Southern Stage Lines team of Wichita, Kansas, for play last night at seven o'clock, and were defeated by the score of 37-26.

The Buffs took the lead from the start and had scored 8 points before the Wichita bunch got started. The Kansans started a campaign of accurate basket throwing, scoring practically every shots, while the Buffs are reported to have gone wild similar to the T. C. U. game, and were unable to hit the basket.

The Buffs are returning after having made a most favorable impression upon the basketball world in their first trial of the national tournament.

Names Filed For City Election Held in April

Through a misunderstanding as to the final date for filing for city offices, most of the candidates placed their names in the hands of the city secretary Saturday in readiness for a place on the ballot. It was announced by Harvey Cash, City Secretary, Monday, however, that names may be filed until the end of next week, March 19th. The date of the election is Tuesday, April 5.

Those who have filed and the places announced for are as follows: Mayor, C. R. Burrow. City Commissioners: W. S. Amend; J. I. Ballengee; and H. W. Crain.

Application Farm Loans May be Made At Either Bank

Blanks for farm loans under the new law were received Monday afternoon and the first applications were made out Tuesday. However, none of the applications have been sent in, as federal men are working in the territory giving final instructions regarding the loans.

For the present applications may be made at either bank, through W. C. Black, cashier of the First National, or Grady Oldham, cashier of the First State. It was stated yesterday that it may be necessary for the Chamber of Commerce to open special offices to handle these loans, owing to the heavy work that it has in prospect, and the local organization desires to assist in every way the farmers with the loans. County Agent W. H. Upchurch will instruct the farmers as to making out their loan applications, but is not allowed to make out any of the papers.

The local committee, composed of W. C. Black, R. O. Allison, Wallace R. Clark, T. C. Thompson, Grady Oldham, W. H. Upchurch and Fred E. Wortham are in Amarillo today to meet a representative of the federal government in receiving final instructions regarding the loan applications.

Fellowship and City Planning at Rotary Luncheon

The Canyon Rotary Club heard two talks Tuesday at the luncheon time, one on Fellowship by Dr. L. N. Lipscomb of Amarillo, and one on City Planning by R. C. Morrison of Fort Worth.

The birthday of W. D. Pike, March 7th, was recognized.

J. Holland Cox, Jr., was introduced as a new member of the Club.

The program was in charge of George Foster, chairman of the Fellowship committee.

Rev. Lipscomb stated that fellowship was one of the great needs of the world. Service clubs promote it, but too often it ceases outside the club's circles. It is the thing which should give the individual a greater outlook on life. Humanity is of the common denominator. There are few geniuses on earth, and we all feel more or less akin. A great tragedy like the Lindbergh kidnapping brings all of us together.

The speaker pointed out the fact that the culminaion of fellowship was with Christ. The Rotary club has this ideal, and if it fails to carry out its ideal it has failed as a club. Each individual owes an obligation to his fellow man to make life easier and more pleasant for him.

The test of greatness, according to Rev. Lipscomb, is two fold: What am I worth to God, and what am I worth to man.

R. C. Morrison, city forester of Fort Worth, stated that most towns are built without a plan. They spread out over three times as much ground as necessary, and therefore are costing three times as much in streets, alleys and utilities than they should cost. The ideal town is one of 15,000 population. Its ideals are more nearly perfect than the larger towns.

Four points are necessary for an ideal town: 1. Cleanliness; 2. A civic league or woman's auxiliary to the Chamber of Commerce; 3. A comprehensive plan of building, with growth control, or costly mistakes will be made; 4. Interest in its region, as no town can build or prosper beyound the interest it has in its surroundings.

Housewives Asked To Open Doors to Census Taker

Owing to the difficulties in gaining admittance last year because housewives who did not know him frequently mistook him for a peddler, J. W. Shanklin has announced that he will begin taking the scholastic census Monday, March 14th and requests that housewives be on the lookout for him and answer doorbells. Last year Mr. Shanklin called at some homes as many as ten times before he was able to get the required information. He, therefore, spent much more time at the job than was necessary and went to an endless amount of trouble in taking the census.

Residents are asked to remember that in listing their children of school age, those who will be 6 years old on or before September 1, 1932, are to be included.

BUDGET COMING YEAR C. OF C. REDUCED $1200

PROGRAM FOR YEAR OUTLINED BY DIRECTORS.

Fourteen Objects Set Out to Accomplish During Coming Year in Directors Meeting.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce held last Friday night, it was voted to offer the services of the secretary to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society during the next few months in that organization's final drive to complete the erection plans for the museum building.

Those present at the Friday Friday night meeting were: T. C. Thompson, A. W. Sternenberg, W. A. Warren, Ray V. Davis, Levi Cole, S. H. Condron, Harris M. Cook, and Fred Wortham. Miscellaneous bills allowed totaled $13.60. It was voted that the Chamber of Commerce send resolutions of respect to the family of Dr. R. B. Cousins, who died last Thursday, in as much as he was an active community leader during the time he was president of the College here. The committee appointed for drafting the resolutions were: C. R. Burrow, Mrs. Harvey Cach, Clyde W. Warwick, Mrs. H. A. Brown, and T. C. Thompson.

A report was made by the committee recently appointed to prepare a budget and working program for this year. The recommendations of the commitee gave a tentative budget for the year to the amount of $2,455.00. In part the report reads as follows: "In view of the reduction of general expenditures along all business lines we deem it advisable to make a reduction in the budget of this organization for this year. The expenditures of the past year show that a budget of better than $3,700 was handled in 1931 and this year's budget will show a reduction of approximately one-third that of last year." A clause in the report will allow the admission of additional expenditures, provided money for such special purposes are raised through special funds.

A general meeting of the entire membership and the citizens of the community were discussed and it was voted to hold such a gathering some later date in this month. Plans for a membership drive were discussed, as were Trades Day and Trade Extension plans. Committees to complete plans for all of these will be announced within a few days.

The program for the year which was submitted by the committee which has been studying the matter for several weeks, included:

1. Raise Funds to Pay Museum Building Pledge.
2. Hold more general meetings (one about every two months.)
3. Carry on Beautification program already started through cooperation with Federated Women's

Forester From Ft. Worth Makes Talk Here on Tuesday

Colored picture slides of the Palo Duro Canyon will be used in future lectures to be given by R. C. Morrison of Fort Worth, in discussing the unlimited possibilities of West Texas and her beauty spots.

Mr. Morrison who was here Tuesday, secured from Ray V. Davis, a number of colored slides of the Palo Duro Canyon scenes. Mr. Morrison addressed the Rotary club on the beautification program of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and also spoke at the Olympic Theatre at 3 o'clock Tuesday under the auspices of the Federated Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Fort Worth visitor viewed the canyon for the first time Sunday afternoon, and declared that he was amazed at such beautiful scenery. He said that he had never heard of the place and didn't realize that such a beauty spot existed in Texas. He speaks to approximately 15,000 people each year and stated that he could give this section some valuable publicity on the Palo Duro.

Owing to the severe cold weather Tuesday afternoon only a small crowd of business men and ladies of Canyon heard the address of Mr. Morrison, who discussed, "Making the Most of Our Environment." Mr. Morrison's mission in West Texas at this time is to arouse a civic interest in the need for beautification and to explain how such can be accomplished without the expenditure of large sums of money. His tour was arranged by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in preparing the way for its five year beautification plan.

The address Tuesday afternoon was illustrated with more than 150 picture slides, showing how local situations and handicaps may be handled, and the need of planning for the future of the city. His discussion brought many valuable ideas to the people of Canyon and his timely suggestions are expected to be of value in future beautification plans.

Low Water Rates To Be Allowed During Summer

It has been announced by the City Commission that the eight months contract rate on city water for irrigation purposes will be in effect again this year. The contract began with the February meter reading and will continue through the subsequent eight months. Contract for the low rate may be made at the city water office until April 20.

Users of the water under the contract rate agree to use the water for household and irrigation purposes only. The low rate does not apply for commercial use.

Canyon Schools In Good Shape To Finish Term

In the competent hands of the present Board of Trustees, the Canyon Independent School district has prospered and according to a report issued this week by Dan F. Sanders, president of the board, for the first time in many years the school will not have to borrow money with which to finish the term.

The taxpayers of the district have cooperated in paying taxes and, in spite of the general business conditions of the county, have come to the front and by remitting have placed the schools in a better financial condition that they have been in years. There will be ample money to pay all outstanding debts, according to report. It is requested, however, that those who have not paid their school taxes to do so at once in the event that an emergency arises and more money is needed.

With the trustee election which is to be held April 2, the terms of four of those now in office will expire. Those now serving as trustees are: Dan F. Sanders, R. O. Allison, Albert Barnett, E. Burroughs, W. H. Stroud, Tom Slack and R. E. Ball. Of these the first three hold over for another term while the terms of the last four expire with the election. Much of the present good condition of the schools is due to the school board who have wisely handled the funds and have made an enviable record while in office.

H. R. RIGGS DIED YESTERDAY AT AMARILLO HOSPITAL

H. R. Riggs, prominent farmer of the north part of Randall county died yesterday afternoon at an Amarillo hospital.

Mr. Riggs has been a prominent farmer of Randall county for 26 years. He was a candidate for county commissioner in the primary two years ago.

Dr. R. B. Cousins, First President W. T., Dies Suddenly Thursday Following Attack of Influenza

Was President of Texas College of Arts and Industries at the Time of Death; Special Memorial Services Are Held Saturday Morning at College Auditorium With Dean Jarrett in Charge.

Dr. R. B. Cousins, first president of the West Texas State Teachers College, died at 11:30 Thursday night at his home in Kingsville following a short attack of influenza which was not considered serious until he suddenly collapsed Thursday night. Dr. Cousins was president of the Texas College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville at the time of his death.

Invocation was given by Rev. C. E. Jameson, pastor of the Methodist church and several numbers were given by the choir under the leadership of Miss Pauline Brigham, Associate professor of Music. Talks on the life and works of Dr. Cousins was given by the following: Dean Jarrett, D. A. Shirley, Miss Mary E. Hudspeth, Miss Anna I. Hibbets, Dr. F. M. Wilson, Judge J. W. Crudgington, and President J. A. Hill. Rev. L. R. Hudson, pastor of the Christian church gave the benediction.

Mr. Cousins was born in Fayetteville, Georgia, July 21, 1861. He was the son of Isaac William and Mary Elizabeth Bennett Cousins. He was educated in public and private schools of Georgia, receiving his A. B. degree from the University of Georgia in 1882. Later he did graduate work in the University of Chicago. He was granted the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Southwestern University in 1926.

On September 5, 1885, he was married to Dora M. Kelley of Longview. To that union there were born six children: Mary Mabel, deceased; Robert Bartow, Jr., a prominent business man in Texas; Ralph Pittman, a major in the flying service of his country; Wayne Kelley, connected with one of the leading daily newspapers of Wichita, Kansas; Edith Blair, who is associate dean of women at Kingsville; William Gregg, his youngest son, who died while Mr. Cousins was connected with this institution, and it was in his honor that the Gregg Cousins Memorial Loan Fund was named.

He was a teacher in the rural schools of Georgia and in the high school of Longview until 1883. He was superintendent at Mineola from 1885 to 1887; superintendent at Mexia from 1887 to 1903 and from 1905 to 1910 he served the state of Texas as State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

He resigned from that position when he was elected to be the first president of the West Texas State Normal College, which was the predecessor of this institution. He was president here from 1910 to 1918, and upon his resignation entered business in Longview, where he was engaged until 1921. But he felt that his work was in the field of education. He served as superintendent of the Houston public schools from 1921 to 1924. He resigned there after he was elected president of the South Texas State Teachers College, which later became the College of Arts and Industries at Kingsville. He served in that position from 1924 to 1932.

In 1897-98 he was president of the Texas State Teachers Association. He was co-author with Dr. Joseph Abner Hill of an American History for Schools, 1913, which was for so long the adopted text in Texas public schools.

He was a lifelong Democrat, a Mason, to whose tenets he faithfully adherred, a Woodman and a Rotarian, he exemplified perfectly the motto of Rotary, which is "Service above Self." He took an active and prominent part in the Methodist church wherever he lived, and he will always be remembered by the citizens of Canyon for his faithful and efficient work in that church.

Dr. J. A. Hill Speaks

At the memorial serxice Dr. Hill spoke as follows: I am quite aware that the adjournment hour is already here. I am also quite aware that those who have gone before have spoken in more beautiful terms than I can command, and yet I must do myself the justice and give myself the opportunity to say something at this time. I shall try to be brief as I can. I have no prepared address. Since the shocking news came to me yesterday morning, over the wire, my mind has been so broken and disturbed that it has been impossible for me to think about what I should say at this time; therefore my remarks will probably be rather rambling.

I want to portray as best I can some of the qualities of the life of the man, through what he did here and through some incidents that took place in my relations with him; and my great desire in doing that is that you students who are now here can catch, if possible, some of the beauty, some of the courage, some of the integrity, some of the inspiration, some of the hope, some of the devotion to highest ideals that characterized this great citizen and educational leader. His prayer has been for you no less than for those who were here when he was here, and though he has not seen most of you, to his last day, I know that his thought has been of you.

I want to tell here an incident which he told to few people, about how the West Texas State Teachers College came to be here. The location of this institution was provided for by a bill establishing a Normal College as it was called, somewhere west of the 98th meredian, in Texas. If you will look at your map and locate the 98th meredian you will see it opened up a large territory. The result was that the committee composed of Lt. Governor Davidson, the speaker of the house, Mr. John Marshall of Sherman, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, then Mr. R. B. Cousins, had the responsibility of locating the institution. They traveled across West Texas visiting all the applying towns and there were about 100 of them. When it came to voting, Governor Davidson voted for Canyon, Mr. Marshall for Ballinger, and Mr. Cousins for Sweetwater, and there they hung for a week each trying to get one of the others to vote his way. I asked Mr. Cousins why he finally voted with Mr. Davidson rather than with Speaker Marshall and he said, "Ballinger was a saloon town; Canyon was dry and I could not make up my mind to locate the institution where intoxicating drinks were sold."

I said in reply "But didn't you think that prohibition was coming and that the whole country would be dry?" He answered, "But I did not know how many boys might be ruined, and some of them might be mine," so he cast his vote for Canyon. I don't think he ever told that publicly, but he told it to me in just that way. It shows, even in the location of the institution, a remarkable interest which he always manifested in the youth of our country. He believed that the educational careers of young men and young women ought to be molded in an environment conducive to the highest ideals of conduct. And so he cast his vote.

Beautiful and pathetic reference has already been made to the death of his son, Gregg Cousins on January 9, 1912. Mr. Cousins was a man who loved deeply; a man of profound emotions; a man who loved friends as few men love friends; a man who was devoted to his family; his baby son was the idol of his heart, and when he was taken away by spinal meningitis, which Mr. Cousins was said to have believed that he himself brought to his child, because he had just returned from a State Teachers Meeting at Waco where meningitis was prevalent, you can imagine the depth of feeling through which he passed. Out of respect to that love for his son for whom he had such wonderful hopes, we, the faculty, were more than glad, with his cooperation, to establish the Gregg Cousins Memorial Loan Fund. And so, some of you today, some of you within the last few days, have been the recipients of blessings from this incident. It showed the character of the man in a most wonderful way. He was a sincere man; and the best that can be said of any man is that he was a good, sincere man.

Dr. Cousins was a great man, an honorable man, a man of great self possession, a modest man, a man who did not try to impose himself upon other people and drive them. He led them by

Two statements in last week's issue of the News regarding the city's finances may have been misunderstood by the readers, and in looking over the issue, we find that the type did not say exactly what was meant by the the reporter in telling of the splendid condition of Canyon as revealed by the auditor's report. In the first place, regarding the indebtedness of the city, we are fearful of a misunderstanding: the assets of the city listed should have referred to $208,411.76 as being the total assets above all indebtedness. The total debt of the city was $81,000 as shown by the audit. The second statement was in regard to the lowered cost of water, as the auditor found by the expenses of the city's water plant during the past year. In view of the fact that the water plant does not carry a separate bonded indebtedness, the auditor did not take into consideration the interest and sinking fund in compiling the cost of water. The auditor found that the cost of actually producing water at the plant was 20.6 cents per thousand gallons, but if the debt against the plant was considered, as the city administration always considers in setting the price to sell the water, the cost would be increased several cents per thousand gallons. This explanation is made in order that there be no misunderstanding. The report is one, and highly pleasing to the citizens of Canyon.

A sales tax is almost certain to be passed by congress during the present session. While business men shudder at the prospects of another tax, yet at the same time the general sales tax may prove to be of some benefit in the long run. The sales tax may cause many merchants to stop and think in the mania of price cutting, and dumping merchandise. If on top of selling goods for no profit he is forced to pay Uncle Sam a cash tax on every dollar's worth of transactions, there should be a better tone in the business world. As little as the general public may appreciate this statement, merchandise from the manufacturers and from the wholesalers do not warrant the low levels that continue in most lines, and the merchant who is just dumping without profit will find when he rebuys that he will be paying about the same for his new stock as he paid for the old. Of course, there are many exceptions, but the above statement is the general rule. Also this general sales tax will hit hardest of all the cheap chain stores who do a tremenduous volume and never have any goods at inventory time. The new tax will cause every merchant to install a more complete system of bookkeeping, which in itself will be a good thing for every business firm.

Perhaps no man in the educational life of Texas has had a greater influence for good upon the lives of the young people than has Dr. R. B. Cousins, who died Friday at his home in Kingsville. No other man has had the opportunity of being the first president of two colleges of the first class rank, as did Dr. Cousins. No man has intimately touched the lives of so many young people, during his long service in the school room, his presidency of two colleges, and upon the lecture platform all over the state as has Dr. Cousins. His was a busy, useful life. He was a thinker, a performer of good, a completely Christian gentleman, who believed that first of all a man should be a gentleman and a woman should be a lady. To have known Dr. Cousins was indeed a high privilege. His influence was always on the right side, and will continue for generations through the thousands of lives with whom he came in contact while engaged in his busy life's work.

Dr. W. O. Mendenhall, president of Friends University, Wichita, Kansas, in his address to the North Texas Students Christian Conference at Texas Woman's College, Fort Worth, last week spoke on gossip of the age, and vividly described it as follows: "Gossips are merely persons with an inferiority complex who through their gossip try to bring people who accomplish things down to their own level." The next time you start to repeat some gossip, which you know is untrue or at least unsubstantiated, just remember the wisdom of the Doctor. The gossip deals in slime, largely because this is the level of his own mind, and the fact that he repeats the gossip proves that his mind is no higher in thought than the subject upon which he dwells.

The kidnapping of Charles Lindbergh will no doubt cause to be passed by congress a bill making such practice punishable by death. Several states, including Texas, have passed such laws, but the kidnappers usually work over the state's borders and therefore this crime should be punishable by federal statute. It is a shame upon America that gangsters have such a control on the public. Racketeers in the cities are said to dominate business. Paying tribute to a gang of murderers and thieves is a very poor tribute to the memory of George Washington in the perod of celebration of his 200th birth anniversary. Punishment by death is the only way that kidnapping will be curbed to any extent, and this with a federal law, for unfortunately the states do not seem to be able to cope with the situation.

The bank robbery at Shamrock Friday looked very much like a part of the same gang that operated in Canyon a year ago. Practically the same methods were used which at that time were unique so far as the art of bank robbing was concerned. Hardly a day passes that you do not read of a bank robbery in some section of the country. The lawless element is altogether too well organized in America today.

The State Highway Commission issues warning against posting candidate advertisements along the highways. All kinds of advertising has been banned from the state highways right-of-way. Candidates are tempted to use bridge and guide signs, which is against the law, and will lead the violator into difficulty.

Insurance policy holders are paying for the large number of fires in Texas at this time. Insurance rates are being increased in many towns, and eventually will be extended to all towns if fires continue to occur. Fires do not pay.

After all, that was a short summer we had in February and the first of March.

DID YOU HELP KIDNAP THE LINDBERGH BABY?

(By John L. McCarty, in Dalhart Texan.)

Today the world is aroused over the kidnapping of the little twenty-months-old son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, the most famous and best loved couple in the world. Taken out of its sick bed where it was suffering from a severe cold, perhaps the same type of flu that came near taking your baby or ours this year, the little child has been missing a mother's care since Tuesday night.

A ransom of $50,000 is asked and the father will gladly pay more if the kidnappers will hurry and return the babe to its mother, who is ill and in no condition for such a strain. In the meantime the country is anxiously waiting for news, mothers and fathers look more carefully to their own children and the Lindberghs have the prayers of a nation.

Naturally, there is the deepest of hate and scorn for the kidnappers. Most anyone would enjoy flying into them and tearing them to pieces, but let's ponder a moment over the situation. Did you or did I help kidnap the baby?

Are we responsible for the kidnappers who wanted money so bad they were willing to endanger their lives and the life of this little baby?

Should society be punished along with the criminal?

Are we helping create potential kidnappers of babies right here in Dalhart?

In recent years we have been shocked by one dastardly crime after another and yet we may be partly to blame. How often have we winked at the law, civil and criminal?

How often have we failed to do our duty in apprehending some person who has committed a crime?

How often have we turned our backs on church, Sunday school and on practice of good citizenship? How often have we failed to help a fellow back on the straight and narrow road once he started slipping? How quick have we been to lap up the vomit of gossip and pass it on to someone else?

The kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby is terrible. Our hearts go out to the Lindberghs in sympathy. We're hoping and praying that the baby is returned safe and sound. We are hoping that the guilty are apprehended.

However, we are wondering just how much we may have contributed to the civilization that produces kidnappers, gangsters, racketeers and legal burglars. We ask that you give it a thought. The false standards raised in this country, the idea that money counts for everything, the idea that "it is all right if you can get away with it" was created by the multiplied acting, thinking and talking of our people. It didn't rise up over night. It is not some plague that strikes a nation one day and is gone the next. It is a definite state of human society that has been planted and cultivated by that society. You and I may be partially responsible for the condition.

We can whip gangsters, crime, kidnappers and the general disrespect for law and order, but not with cops, machine guns, brilliant attorneys or wise judges. This condition can be whipped completely and finally by you and I. Our attitude, our actions, our talking, our thinking can make for a complete reversal of form. Think that over carefully. Let us put a new value and a new regard on good citizenship, a good name and good character.

Plans Made For High School One-Act Play Contest

District Number One of the Texas Interscholastic League will have one of the largest one-act play contests to be held in the state of Texas this year.

Fourteen Panhandle schools had completed their arrangements to compete in the contest on the closing date, March 1, according to W. E. Lockhart, manager of the tournament.

Roy Bedichek, chief of the Interscholastic League Bureau of the University of Texas, recently wrote: "It seems that there get to be more and more entries in your part of the state each year. Probably this is due to the fact that your tournament is handled so well."

Schools that have entered are Amarillo, Quitaque, White Deer, Spearman, Miami, Pampa, Texline, Canadian, Dumas, Canyon, McLean, Friona, Stratford and Panhandle.

Season tickets, which will give admittance to all the plays, will be 25 cents.

When folks criticise you for the things you haven't said or done you may feel secure in the fact that your words and deeds have not been open to critism.

The trouble with this world is that most of the people in it have too much human nature and not enough sense.

Miss Emma Bowyer returned on Sunday to resume her old station as milliner with the Supply Co.

Bob Foster is still laid up from his fall. He is not doing as well as expected.

Club Notes.

Mrs. S. L. Ingham entertained the Woman's Boob Club last Saturday evening. A very instructive program on "Topics of the Day—Local and Foreign" had been prepared and was interesting to all. Mrs. Sowder produced a budget of local events generously interspersed with humor. Mrs. Ingham read clippings and talked freely of U. S. and foreign events of late occurance. The club was also favored with a few piano selections by Miss Haney.

Two applicants for membership were received, thus raising the number to 39.

The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Donald at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Word, Saturday, March 23rd.

Coffee Bros. started this week on a modern cottage for A. S. Rollins. It will contain five rooms with halls, porches, etc., and is a turn key job at $2,250. It is on the two inside lots from the residence Mr. Rollins sold to C. C. Donphan.

In the Sumerall and Lee Vansant buggy head-end collision Saturday evening near the printing office the latter had his buggy shafts one-half destroyed and in addition must go on a crutch for several days having, in the smash-up, injured his right leg about the knee. The injury to the limb is caused by some of the ligaments having been wrenched loose.

MORE HEAT and LESS GAS

There is only one suggestion for the better use of a radiant type Gas Heater, beyond having a good flame, proper connections, keeping burners and heating elements clean and general care in not burning gas needlessly.

This suggestion is to watch the flame so that it does not go OVER THE TOP of the radiant grid which throws out the heat. This wastes heat and gas, besides not giving you all the heat there is in the gas that is burned. The flames should be just high enough to heat the grid or other radiating material and no higher.

The principle of this radiant type heater is incandescence, the use of a small amount of gas to produce a great deal of heat, practically all of which is utilized.

Simply turn on enough gas to make the entire grid glow—and no more.

The Amarillo management has arranged for an unusually low price schedule for the production, ranging from 50 cents to $2.50, because the booking follows the Jolson engagement so closely.

Behind Our Warm Welcome

To this bank the desire to serve far beyond the expected is not merely an attitude of mind. Nor is the warmth so noticeable in its welcome to a visitor just a gesture. Both are expressive of a creed that makes of service a real privilege.

For a bank, after all, has only service to sell—whether it is a service of counsel, or of capital. To dispense that service is but a duty; to dispense it well is an expected trust; but to dispense it cheerfully is a real pleasure.

CHAMBER OF COMERCE

FRED E. WORTHAM, Secretary

This organization wishes to express to Mr. W. J. Wooten our appreciation for his cooperation by offering the Olympic Theatre for use by Mr. R. C. Morrison, who spoke here Tuesday in the interest of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Beautification program.

The Chamber of Commerce is making an appeal to all real estate dealers in Canyon to list their names with this office. There are a number of men in Canyon who engage in handling of real estate transactions, and we are of the opinion that the records of this office are not complete in regards to those dealing in real estate. This organization, from time to time, has information which will be of much interest to all those interested in handling real estate, and for that reason we desire to have listed the name of every man so engaged. Please list your name with this office immediately.

Comments received from various citizens regarding statements which have been published under this heading recently, lead us to believe that at least a few of our citizens are beginning to realize that YOUR Chamber of Commerce is doing its best to render a public service to the community.

People refer to this organization both in writing and speech as the Canyon Chamber of Commerce. This implies that it is an organization designed for Canyon people only. This is far from being true. It is an organization hoping to be of benefit to the entire county. Then too, it IS NOT the Canyon Chamber of Commerce. Those who refer to this organization by that name are in error. This body a little more than two years ago, was chartered under the laws of Texas as THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF CANYON, TEXAS. However, until recently the official name was recognized as the Canyon Chamber of Commerce. So please remember, this is the Chamber of Commerce of Canyon, Texas, and our aim is to be of service to all of Randall County.

"The test of a man's worth to his community is the service he renders to it," is the manner in which Theodore Roosevelt defined a good citizen.

You should belong to the Chamber of Commerce because:

1. The Chamber of Commerce is the best agency equipped to analyze and study the community's needs, and you should want to help in such constructive work.
2. Because the Chamber of Commerce is now engaged in a constructive program in the best interests of the community and you should have a part in this work also.

The following is a condensed report of the month's activities. This report covers only a part of the month's work.

During the month of February the Chamber of Commerce sponsored three radio programs; a Trades Day; conducted a survey over the entire city asking that citizens present suggestions for outlining a year's program. Completed information necessary for filing an income tax exemption claim was compiled and forwarded to Washington. Cooperation was offered the Santa Fe railway in bringing its Farm and Home Special train here March 26. The Chamber of Commerce received 15 inquiries regarding the city, county, the Palo Duro canyon, the college and general resources of this section. Two meetings of the committee on arranging a budget and program were held during the month.

The Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce committee on taxes and public expenditures gathered information on the budgets and proposed expenditures of the school district, city and county for the coming year. This information will be assembled with that from all sections of West Texas and from the information secured the committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will formulate a plan or campaign regarding a reduction of public expenditures and taxes.

The secretary attended six outside meetings, made four trips to Amarillo in the interest of Chamber of Commerce. One meeting attended in Amarillo was in the interest of the Federal Farm Production Loans. He assisted in the high school district basketball tournament held here; wrote 57 news and publicity items during the month. Four hundred sixty one letters were sent out from this office, 62 telephone calls received and 55 visitors were in the Chamber of Commerce office on business with the organization during the month.

Cousins Memorial

When he came to Austin to fight for an appropriation for this building I became well acquainted with him, and his determination that this building should be completed and not partially completed as was outlined won my sincere admiration. He was successful as in most of his undertakings. He was the kind of man that let no kind of discouragement thwart him in his determination to carry out his plans.

This student body has missed a great deal by not knowing this wonderful man, that your lives might be blessed as those of his students. But you have here the evidences of his life and they should be an inspiration to you. It is to your advantage that you have had the connection you have with this great leader whose far flung influences will reach on down through the coming years.

Reference has been made to the burning of the main building, and to the incidents connected with it. I remember when I visited this city before the school was opened, as a prospective member of the faculty I climbed up on the second floor with another member of the faculty and I said, "If a man can't teach school in this place, he can't teach anywhere." We thought it was the finest school building ever erected. Then when the building burned, I shall never forget the look on Mr. Cousins's face when he burst in to tell me that the building was on fire. And then as we gathered material from all parts of the building, and stood there and watched this seat of our affections go up in smoke, there was a wringing of hearts in faculty and students.

But before the smoke had died away, even before the noon hour (the fire broke out at 9:30 on March 25, 1914) Mr. Cousins called a faculty meeting in the parlor of the president's home, a faculty meeting that none of those who were there will ever get away from. He knelt in prayer, and such a prayer I had never listened to. We went away from that scene under the leadership of this courageous man not knowing how the institution would be reconstructed but knowing that with God's help it would not die. And so some of us have been fighting the battles from that day to this.

He was a man of faith; a man of courage; a man of deep religious convictions. Following the fire and reconstruction, the World War came, and his own sons were called to the battlefield. I have not passed through an agony of that kind, but in the depth of my heart, I believe I can feel with the father whose son goes out to war. He stood here on this platform and watched the boys come and go. The marching out of these young boys to the battlefield wrung his heart; and yet, he was a patriot. He did not begrudge his son on the altar of his country because he believed, as other Americans believed, that his country's welfare was on the altar, so he gave his talent, his time, his money; he gave of his own flesh that his country might be saved. That is the type of man that presided for eight years over the destiny of this institution.

On September 1, 1918, he left the presidential office. I want to tell you an incident in this connection that reveals the character of the man. So far as I know he had not told a single member of his faculty he was going to resign. I had not even thought of such a thing. But one July day when Mr. Cousins was in Austin, I received a telegram from Mr. A. C. Goeth, president of the Board of Regents, telling me that I had been unanimously elected president of West Texas State Teachers College. I did not know what it meant, and I called Mrs. Cousins to find out. She laughingly said that it was true, that I would take charge September 1, and that they were leaving.

Well, of course, the honor that implied was deeply appreciated, but at the same time I could hardly reconcile myself to separation from the man whose idealism, whose courage, whose love for right, whose devotion to learning, whose philosophy of life, whose platform appeals had lifted me in my young days (for I was only 32 years of age when I came to him), and had planted my feet upon solid ground. I could hardly bear the thought of separating from one who had meant that to me.

I have told this incident to show how closely he kept his own counsel. He was very discreet, very cautious—a necessary quality in successful administration, though it sometimes leads along a lonely path.

He did not want any student in this student body who thought there was a better place than this if he could only get there. He had the same sort of an attitude toward members of the faculty. If a member of the faculty did not believe in this institution 100 per cent, he advised that faculty member to find employment somewhere else. In other words he didn't want any half-hearted loyalty about this institution either among students or faculty members. These statements he made before the student body repeatedly and made them in a more forceful way than I have been able to do. With him loyalty was a cardinal virtue; disloyalty, the acme of contemptuous ingratitude.

Reference has already been made to his love for this institution. It was my high privilege to be associated with him on February 12, 1932, at a Teachers Association meeting in San Benito. I had the pleasure of speaking from the same platform. I wish I could repeat to you the things he said about us; a most beautiful tribute; a most earnest description of his relations with this institution, couched in terms of the tenderest affection, and when we parted, he shook my hand and said:

"I want you to bear my love to the folks back home." He looked upon this as home. He loved every brick, every piece of furniture, every thing you see about you in this building, the seats on which you sit this morning; he placed them here and he did it with the consciousness of the finest devotion to the public welfare, the highest integrity in the expenditure of public funds; and in doing so he rendered a great service not only to the boys and girls of that day but to the boys and girls of this day and of the days yet to come.

If you have a friend, a friend who has been your friend through all the years, a friend who has believed in you when others have doubted you, a friend who has fought for you when others have attacked you, a friend who has never allowed you to exceed him in acts of friendship, a friend whom you could trust with the most sacred interests of your life whatever they may be, I say if you have such a friend as that and can then imagine that your friend last night passed to the next world, then you can imagine something of my feelings as I try to talk to you now. A man who has meant more to me than any other man, except perhaps my father, has passed on. I stand here bereft, bowed-down, broken-hearted. My friend is gone. But, I thank God my lines crossed his; and his rich spirit will mingle with mine through the countless aeons of time.

My words as I speak them ring back in my ears and tell me how inadequate—how empty they are.

I must tell you one more incident and then I must close. When he retired from the presidency here, the faculty gave a banquet in his honor. At the banquet of course he made a farewell address, and since I was to succeed him in office he addressed a good many remarks to me, closing his beautiful oration by placing on my finger this ring and as he did so he said:

"I place this ring on your finger as an emblem of the endless quality of the ideals and achievements of the institution over which you will preside; and I want you as you look upon this ring to cherish those ideals and as best you can see that they live on through the years." I have carried as high as I could the torch he lit.

Young men and young women, we who have followed him have tried to keep the faith; we are trying to say to you that the only great life is the good life; the only great man is the good man; the only great woman is the good woman; and regardless of knowledge, learning, wisdom, honor, worldly possessions, or anything of that sort, regardless of your educational attainments, if you do not have good character all is as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal. With my co-laborers I say: God bless his spirit and help you and me to keep the faith.

When your wishbone takes the place of your backbone, don't be surprised if someone gives you a shove in the wrong direction.

Saves Million a Night for U. S.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, above, has been awarded a gold medal and $10,000 by a scientific publication for producing an electric incandescent lamp which, it is estimated, saves a million dollars nightly to the American public, for his work in the improvement of vacuum tubes, and for his atomic hydrogen process of electric welding. Dr. Langmuir is associate director of General Electric's research laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y.

Planning Your Spring Wardrobe Is Easy This Year

SINCE SCHEDULED COLORS BOTH CONTRAST AND BLEND, SIMPLY PLAN WHAT YOU NEED, THEN START OUTFIT WITH APPROPRIATE SUIT AND DRESS

BY HARRIET

WHAT to buy first for the spring wardrobe usually is a perplexing question.

This year there are ways of solving the problem. First, colors are scheduled that give you contrast yet blend so well that if you buy a spring coat and then a suit, the chances are that they'll match.

Second, from the looks of things you will need, in addition to a spring coat, at least one good-looking daytime dress and one of the new suits.

So you can just plan what you have to have and then start with a suit, get a dress that combines pleasantly with your accessories, adding just a new hat, for instance, and then you can wear your spring coat over either the suit or the dress.

The dress, right this minute, is likely to be more important to you than anything else. For you can finish up the last cold days wearing it under your winter coat and then emerge to wear it alone when the sun shines more brightly.

The dress can be lightweight wool, or silk. Nothing, however, is more glamorous than satin. Given a good color, rich blue, brown, or wine, for instance, and you can look smarter and sleeker and more picturesque in a little daytime satin dress than in anything else.

SUCH a one is a little Patou model that emphasizes a very high waistline—the fetish of new styles.

The sleeves are set in right up to the plain neckline and come down fitted clear to the wrists. It has the new daytime length for formal afternoon wear. Since it has a lovely cut and sheen, you will not need many accessories, just beads and a pin. The hat is the brand new up-in-the-back, down-in-the-front type, the back heightened by a feather that sticks straight up. It is dark brown, like the dress.

Jenny shows innumerable suits for spring that are indicative of the new collars and sleeves that spring introduces.

One is of a sheer, spongy black diagonal weave, featherweight but handsomely elaborated with fur.

The cut is very good for older figures, having a fitted waistline, surplice closing and then a length practically finger tip, which flatters a woman who happens to have some hips.

The sleeves are the gauntlet cuff type, the fur gauntlets being removable, leaving a wide-over-the-elbow sleeve that ends about three-fourths way down the arm. The collar is the new shawl that has notches, like a man's coat collar, and then rounds down to a surplice side closing.

Topping it is one of the Paris hats, diminutive, sitting on one half the head rather jauntily, merely tipping slightly onto the other half and then has a kind of visor of fine straw that makes it look a little bit like a jockey's hat.

This is a suit that can take either a tailored blouse, with turn-down collar and bow tie, or a fancy little hand-made organdy blouse, made with tiny short sleeves and a little round yoke.

Countess Weds Man She Shot

In 1927 Alice Silverthorne, former Countess de Janze, shown above, shot Raymond de Trafford, inset, as he was boarding a train to leave Paris for London. Now, five years later, their marriage at Neuilly, near Paris, has been announced. After the shooting, de Trafford refused to prosecute, and the countess was given a suspended sentence.

Ranch House Destroyed by Fire.

Fire of an undetermined origin Sunday night, totally destroyed the eight room stucco ranch house on the Hoover-Strader ranch, 15 miles southeast of Canadian.

H. E. Hoover reports that the fire was discovered by Lee Strader about 10 o'clock. Lee and Clarence Strader and two men, who occupy the house had retired when Lee heard a crackling noise over the room built two years ago for Mr. Hoover. It was impossible to save any of the contents of the house, except Lee's pet birds, Mr. Hoover said.

There was no insurance carried on the house. Besides the residence, the well house and smoke house also were destroyed. Some of the meat in the smoke house was saved however. Damage was estimated by Mr. Hoover at between $5,000 and $10,000.—Canadian Record.

FRESHMAN EDITION

THE EAGLE'S TALE

FRESHMAN EDITION

VOLUME NO. 6 | CANYON, TEXAS, MARCH 10, 1932. | NUMBER 26

Chapels

The chapel program Tuesday was in charge of W. E. Lockhart, captain of Company F, National Guard.

Mr. Lockhart's talk was given in honor of the 96th anniversary of Texas' Independence. He chose General Sam Houston as his subject. He showed where Houston was a great man by comparing him with George Washington. He first showed where Houston and Washington were alike. The following are similar characteristics of Houston and Washington:

Each was a great military leader.
Each was a great political leader.
Each was a great man, physically.

The following are differences between Houston and Washington:

Washington was rich; Houston was poor.
Washington was well educated; Houston was self-educated.
Washington was lucky; Houston was unlucky.

Mr. Lockhart said that no man is more deserving of our honor than is Sam Houston.

The chapel program Thursday was in charge of the Press Club which is under the direction of Marguerite Dickenson.

A play "Printer's Ink" was given with the following people as participants:

Harvey Thomas—Messenger.
Ben Slaughter—Jimmy, the office boy.
George Schmitz—Harold, a reporter.
Louise Wester—Mrs. Worton.
Vincent Lockhart—Spike, a reporter.
R. L. Burnam—Mr. Weston, editor.

This play is the story of a newspaper of which Mr. Weston is editor. It takes place in the office of the "Evening Herald," a great daily newspaper.

"FISH" HOME ROOM MEETING

The Freshman home room sponsored by Mr. Fox had a program on Lincoln, Wednesday, March 2.

Helen Elizabeth Bowman had charge of the program. The program was as follows:

Story of Lincoln—Helen Elizabeth Bowman.
Reading to Lincoln—Bobbie Jo Cheyne.
Speeches of Lincoln—Mr. Fox.

The program was concluded with an interesting game. Everyone played the game with great delight.

FRESHMAN SOCIETY

The Freshmen plan to have a party sometime in the near future. The party will be the only Freshman class party of the year. This question has been subject to much discussion at all of the recent class meetings of the "Fish." The party was first planned before Christmas, but was postponed until later, because of the many other Christmas events.

The carnival was one of the most outstanding social events in which the Freshmen have participated. Two booths were sponsored by the Freshmen, both of which proved very successful.

The sweaters that were awarded to the following also served as basketball sweaters for the following:

D. B. Pearson,
W. Taylor,
C. Wooten,
T. Cox,
J. L. Harden,
C. Wright.

A sweater for his services in basketball has been ordered for Austin Cone.

FRESHMEN DUMB?

Are all Freshmen dumb?

At a meeting of the Freshman Class on Feb. 24, the election for a carnival king and queen to represent the Freshman class was taking place. When J. T. McDonald won with an overwhelming majority the supposedly intelligent remark from Raymond Hughes, "He's a ladies' man," was rewarded by the harshly commanding voice of Miss Foster, showing him the door.

Later in the meeting Vincent Lockhart took charge, speaking of the election of an editor for the Freshman Edition of the "Eagle's Tale." He explained very clearly that persons on the staff could not participate in the editing of this issue; therefore Rubye Foster and Mary Ella Lowe were excluded. iDrectly following this statement, the "Freshman Sap" rose in his leisurely manner and waited for recognition from the president. When recognized he drawled in his somewhat oratorical manner, "Mr. President, I nominate Mary Ella Lowe." He was reminded by a general protest and the hurried withdrawal of the name of his candidate. The meeting was adjourned before the reputation of the "Fish" Class was entirely ruined, by showing more of their dumb characteristics before so important a person as a dignified senior.

FRESHMAN EDITION.

This is the first of four class editions of "The Eagles' Tale" to be published this year.

Each year it is customary for each class to "put out" a paper under their separate supervision. This year staff members of "The Eagle's Tale" were appointed to assist the class staffs in compiling their papers. The regular staff will help only the Freshman Class.

The Freshmen have charge of this page today; the Sophomores that of March 17th; the Juniors, March 24; and the Seniors will publish the final edition on March 31.

Class History

The Freshman class has eighty-one members. It has the record of being the largest class in school. The majority of its members have been in school here for the past eight years. In the first grade, Miss Elva Fronabarger was the teacher. Miss Slover taught the second grade. Miss Stallings and Miss Hood were teachers of the third grade. Miss Childress, now Mrs. Cherry, and Miss Irene Crawford taught the fourth grade. From the fifth grade on the class has had many teachers.

Mary Mae Harrison and Winnie Dee Hicks made the outstanding grades. Both made two grades in one year. Mary Mae was valedictorian of the seventh grade and Winnie Dee was salutatorian.

Robert Orton is the Freshman president.

Freshmen Take Active Part in C. H. S. Athletics

The Freshman Class was well represented in all sports during the past and present seasons. Likely material will be available for future teams.

The Freshmen represented approximately 25 percent of those out for football. Of this number two made the traveling squad. It was in football that Johnnie Wilson gained recognition as an athlete. Johnnie's partner, Wade Johnson, was the other Freshman on the squad.

Basketball also held its number of Freshmen candidates. Like in football, almost one-fourth of those out for basketball were Freshmen. Of this number, Curtis Elliston made the traveling squad, although he did not play enough to receive a letter in the sport.

The Freshmen girls also made a showing in basketball. Mable Schmitz and Dora Mae Plaster were the Freshmen cagers. There were two members of the regular team.

PLAN YOUR COURSE.

One of the Freshmen's greatest mistakes in entering high school is not knowing what he wants to take. Some Freshmen are persuaded to take a subject he is not interested in because of his friend taking that course.

In high school there are enough electives so that everyone may choose a subject that suits his taste. Required subjects are: English, History, and Math. Elective subjects for Freshmen are: Spanish, Latin, General Science, Manual Training and Home Economics.

Work, worry and study are not all that high school is made up of. We also offer for those who are interested, Music, Expression, Glee Club, and Band. Most of the elective courses also have a club. In most of the clubs we study the same subjects but in a different way. In the clubs we discuss the subjects more thoroughly, we also take both sides of the subject and see what we can make of it. Additional subjects relating to the course are discussed.

If possible it is well to decide what you wish to be after finishing high school, and build a useful and interesting course around your ambitions. It is not a bad idea for a Freshman to know what he wants to take before he fills out his program. Therefore, to have a well rounded high school career it is well to plan your course as a Freshman.

Your HOME Should Come FIRST

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Carries with it certain duties and obligations which cannot be overlooked.

No selfish policy can achieve lasting success, but through co-operation and active public interest we can make our community flourish and grow.

We do not measure success by profit alone. If, through careful service, we can help our patrons to greater prosperity, our business will take care of itself.

The growth of our business and any profit that we may expect from it is entirely dependent upon the prosperity and growth of our community as a whole.

The difference between success and failure is often measured by our ability to take full advantage of the experience of others.

Hoping that we may be able to serve you even better from now on than we have in the past for over one third of a century.

FOR HIS AND HER

SAFETY

BOY IS ELECTROCUTED
HOUSTON, March 2, 1931.—L. D. Walters, 11, was electrocuted yesterday at Cedar Bayou when a copper wire attached to the string of a kite he was flying came in contact with a high tension electric line.

TEACH THEM TO FLY KITES AWAY FROM

and not use wire as kite string!!

Tell your children not to fly their kites near electric poles or wires, and most important of all, not to use wire as kite string. Because of its durability many boys have purchased magnet wire or other fine wire with which to fly kites. This is very dangerous practice.

All electric lines carry high voltage and should the kite wire come in contact with this high voltage you may be sure that something disastrous will happen. Even the common string has been known to conduct electricity.

This is kite flying time, and a fine healthy sport it is, but the best place to enjoy this fun is out on a vacant lot or in the park where no overhead wires can interfere with the flight of the kite, or endanger the youngster who flies it.

"YOUR ELECTRIC SERVANT"

Some of Original Faculty Members Are Still in Harness

By Mrs. T. V. Reeves

Many winds have swept across the plains since the day that the first West Texas College opened its doors, and the events of the past week have brought to light many reminisences, especially by the members of the faculty and townspeople who were here and shared the high hopes that marked the opening of the school.

Of the sixteen people who gathered that first year from every part of Texas to work with President Cousins three have become college presidents. Dr. J. A. Hill who was the first to receive such promotion, succeeded Mr. Cousins to the presidency of W. T. in 1918.

Later R. L. Marquis, formerly head of the biology department of W. T. went to Sul Ross as president and from there was promoted to the presidency of the North Texas State Teachers College at Denton.

Morelock to Sul Ross

H. W. Morelock stayed at Canyon until 1923, making for himself a name as a remarkable teacher of English. Then he became president at Sul Ross where he still serves.

During the first twelve months in the life of the struggling little school, death twice visited the ranks. Miss Ida B. Evans, of the education department died and was succeeded by Miss Mary Adaline Lamb, who came to Canyon from the New Mexico State Normal University at Las Vegas, New Mexico. J. A. Crawford, secretary of the college, succumbed to typhoid fever, just at the beginning of a promising career; his place was filled by R. A. Terrill, who was for a time secretary and teacher of commercial branches before going into the manual training department.

Romance lingered about the halls of the first administration building, and Miss Emma I. Rasor exchanged her position as teacher of penmanship and drawing for that of a doctor's wife. She now lives in Miami, Florida.

Professor B. A. Stafford, head of the Latin department, continued with the college until failing health forced his retirement; he finished his life in Canyon and Mrs. Stafford who still lives here is the trusted and loved friend of faculty and students.

Perhaps the most picturesque figure in the first faculty was that of F. P. Guenther, of the department of modern languages. Tall, very dark, with a long black curling moustache, and wearing a broad-brimmed black hat, his distinguished appearance and gallant manners made him quickly known, and his fine spirit, hospitality and versatility kept him so. He died,

FAINTING SPELLS EVERY MONTH

San Antonio, Texas—"For the last three years I was not well at all," said Miss Beatrice Longoria of 2924 W. Commerce St. "I had fainting spells every month and would often have to call the doctor. I would be very, very nervous so that I hardly knew what to do. My mother had me take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I am so glad I did because it is the best medicine I ever took. I have no fainting spells now. I am glad to tell this because I know it will help other sick women." Ask your druggist for Resolutions of Respect Made by Canyon C. of C.

Whereas, The stillness of Death has halted the work of one, known for his rich, fruitful life and strength of character, and respected for the great good he has done for the cause of Education in Texas by devoting a life-time to that work and at the time of his death was president of the College of Arts and Industries, Dr. Robert Bartow Cousins, and,

Whereas, He was very instrumental in the location and establishment of the institution now known as the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon and served as its first president and labored with the progress and growth of the college during eight years after its establishment, and,

Whereas, He was an active citizen of this community, taking the part of a leader in the affairs of his fellow townsmen, holding a sincere interest in the progress of the community, both while a resident here and after he had moved from our midst, and,

Whereas, The bereaved family, the College of Arts and Industries, the cause of Education in our State, and the state at large has suffered a great loss in the death of Dr. Cousins, for he was a loving and kind husband and father and an upright citizen beloved and admired by all those who knew him, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Chamber of Commerce of Canyon, Texas, that we express our sympathy to the family and relatives of the deceased, and, be it further,

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be ordered spread on the minutes of this organization, a copy sent to the family of the deceased and a copy published in The Canyon News and The Prairie.

Here is the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., from which Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped. The ladder which the kidnapers used is shown leading to the window through which the baby was taken.

Lindy's Baby Kidnaped

Here is Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., 20-month-old son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who was kidnaped as he slept in his crib at the Lindbergh estate in the lonely Sourland mountains near Hopewell, N. J. By means of a ladder, the kidnapers climbed into the second-floor nursery at the Lindbergh home, seized the baby and fled.

Umbarger Items

We were surprised at the sudden cold spell that came Thursday night and Friday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Koch, Mrs. Lewis Wieck and family and Mrs. E. J. Friemel, Mrs. Bill Bouren and Miss Rose Friemel visited Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Westhoff Sunday afternoon.

Regina Hollenstein visited Pauline Friemel Sunday.

Miss Marie Hollenstein and Miss Adelia Friemel were business callers at the Umbarger Mercantile Saturday.

Mrs. Rudolph Friemel visited our school Monday.

We are sorry to report that Maria Batenhorst is absent on account of illness; we miss her very much from our class and hope she will soon be able to attend school again.

We are glad to have Isabel Mejia back in school again after a rather long absence of two weeks.

Our seventh grade made some lovely geography booklets this week, which helped to test their knowledge of this subject.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wieck, Elizabeth and little Clara made a business trip to Amarillo on Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Rudolph Friemel made a business trip to Amarillo Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. White and son, Edward J., visited relatives in Amarillo on Friday of last week.

Zita Breezes

The P. T. A. met Saturday night with a fair attendance. Easter plans were made and then the judges judged declamation speeches. Elizabeth Hales will be a representative for the junior girls, and H. B. Hales a representative for the junior boys.

Mrs. Emma Gruner and Mrs. Bertha Gowdy visited Sunday with Mrs. M. H. Rockwell.

Mrs. John Moody and daughter Mrs. Bailey McCormick and Mrs. Bud Owen and children visited Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. L. J. Fulton.

There has been several of the community ill the past week.

Several men intend to attend the hog sale at Hereford Tuesday.

A few children were compelled to miss school last week on account of bad weather.

Little did the average man think that the day would ever come when he would lose his illusions, his hair, his teeth, his tonsils and his appendix.

According to Dr. Parkhurst, famous Anti-Tammany crusader, "The jaws of Justice in New York are full of false teeth." Which are gold-filled, however.

Why do we call boys and girls of today the "rising generation" when it's almost impossible to get them up in the morning.

St. Patrick Did Not Rid Erin of Snakes, Nor Is March 17 His Birthday!

St. Patrick, a Roman citizen of British birth, arrived in Ireland on the 17th of March, fifteen hundred years ago, and laid securely the foundation of Christianity.

NATIVE Irish and people of Irish descent throughout the world wear green on March 17 in honor of St. Patrick's Day. Despite the world-wide deference accorded Ireland's patron saint, however, few people have an accurate idea of his life and achievements.

This fact is not peculiar for while hundreds of conflicting legends about the saint are existent, few certain things are known about him.

Many people, for instance, believe that March 17 is St. Patrick's birthday. According to one story, though, March 17 is the date of his death in the year 465 A. D. Another tale has it that doubt whether he was born on March 8 or March 9 resulted in a compromise on March 17, reached by adding together the figures 8 and 9. It is generally accepted, however, that March 17 was the date on which St. Patrick arrived in Ireland.

One of the most widely known, but false, legends of St. Patrick is that he drove all snakes and vermin out of Ireland. Certainly there are no snakes in the Emerald Isle, but there is a question whether there were ever any there.

THE rise of this legend is attributed by some authorities to the fact that the Druids of his day had a form of serpent worship. By gradually stamping out the power of the Druids, St. Patrick, it is assumed, was credited with having driven "the snakes" from Ireland.

Perhaps the most surprising fact of all about the saint is that, revered though he is by Irish everywhere, he was not himself a son of Erin. St. Patrick is said to have been a Roman citizen of British birth, although various stories have had it that he was of French, English, Scottish, even Russian birth. At any rate, a spot called Kilpatrick, near Dumbarton, Scotland, on the River Clyde, seems to have the best claim to the honor as his birthplace, in the year 389.

JUST 1500 years ago, St. Patrick arrived in Ireland. An incomparable organizer, he spread the gospel by methods still substantially used. Having landed at Strangford Lough, County Down, he encountered King Laoghaire (Leary) at Slane, County Meath, but gained a bloodless victory and laid the foundation of Christianity so securely that it has persisted all these ages without intermission.

St. Patrick was so successful in his missionary work in Ireland that very soon it seemed as if the whole island were to become a monastery. But, within a century, the Irish began wandering over the continent of Europe, carrying the gospel of Christianity to France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. In these countries today are found very ancient Irish books.

St. Patrick labored in Ireland for nearly 30 years. He died in 461, and "where his bones rest no man knoweth," one of the old chroniclers tells us.

L. N. George Sees Large Enrollment For Summer Term

L. N. George, secretary of the Ex-Students Association, sees a large enrollment for W. T. S. T. C. for the summer term and urges in the following report that the people of Canyon prepare to receive them:

Again I wish to call the attention of the people of Canyon to the absolute necessity of preparing for a large college enrollment this summer. This can be done with comparatively little effort by beginning now. A clean town with flowers and vegetables where we have weed patches will make a big difference. Water, seed, and tools can be arranged for if we want this bad enough. Paint, paper and labor are all plentiful now. Why not fix up our rooms during the next three months.

Several business firms have selected counties and are now writing personal letters to college prospects in these counties. This makes these individuals who plan to come here feel that we appreciate their coming. They know that any place is glad to have their money, but with a small effort we can show them that Canyon takes the place of a hostess and looks upon them as her guests. We need more firms that are willing to do this kind of work, and we are banking on the W. T. ex-students in Canyon to assist in enlisting more firms.

Earl Davis, who is now here in school from Hale Center, and I spent a day in Hale county last week. We visited most all of the rural schools and spoke to the high school seniors at Hale Center, Cotton Center, Abernathy and Petersburg. Leon Payne of Booker, and I visited schools in Lipscomb and Ochiltree and spoke to the seniors at Darrouzett, Booker and Perryton. During the week forty-nine teachers in Hale county and twenty-two on the north plains told us to expect them here this summer. Twelve families were added this week. This makes four hundred seventy-six teachers of which fifty-three have families that are planning to be here this summer. I have covered eight counties which is only one-fifth of our territory.

Blaze Damages Strand Theatre Saturday Eve.

A blaze in the projection room of the Strand Theatre on Fifth Avenue Saturday evening did considerable damage to the sound equipment and to the theatre building. The fire was caused by the film coming in contact with a projecting light while E. E. Anderson, manager of the theatre, was warming the machine up for the evening performance. The machine was completely demolished by the blaze.

The building and equipment is owned by George W. Leaverton of Tucson, Arizona. The loss is covered by insurance.

German Remedy Stops 30-Year Constipation

"For 30 years I had a bad stomach and constipation. Souring food from stomach choked me. Since taking Adlerika I am a new woman. Constipation is a thing of the past."—Alice Burns.

Most remedies reach only lower bowel. That is why you must take them often. But this simple German remedy Adlerika washes out BOTH upper and lower bowel. It brings out all gas and rids you of poison you would never believe was in your system. Even the FIRST dose will surprise you. Jarrett Drug Company. 5
